

Vagisan Protective Ointment

Breathable, protective ointment for the external genital area

For women prone to skin irritations in the external genital area

Many women are familiar with these symptoms but rarely speak about them: The skin in the external genital area, sometimes right to the bottom area, feels sore and is red, itchy and burns.

Possible triggers for skin irritations

A number of influences can negatively impact the skin's natural protection in the external genital area – especially when they constantly have an effect on the skin for longer periods of time, such as

- bodily excretions like urine and traces of faeces (e.g. in the event of bladder weakness or incontinence), vaginal discharge, menstrual blood and sweat
- sporting activities like cycling and motorcycling, horse riding, jogging and running marathons
- friction caused by tight underwear and clothing, panty liners, or coarse toilet paper
- friction from skin chafing against skin
- excessive hygienic measures, e.g. too frequent washing of the external genital area

Protection can be offered by Vagisan Protective Ointment

Vagisan Protective Ointment was specially developed for use in the external genital area.

The ointment is particularly soft, spreads easily and adheres well to the skin. Given the composition that includes skin-friendly oils and waxes of vegetable origin, it forms a water-repellent protective film on the skin, yet lets the skin 'breathe'. This can protect the skin from skin-irritating influences and prevent the external genital and anal area from becoming sore - without allowing a build-up of moisture. Vagisan Protective Ointment does not contain mineral oils or silicones.

Vagisan Protective Ointment can relieve skin irritations

If the skin is already red and irritated, applying the ointment can help to relieve the symptoms.

The composition of oils and waxes of vegetable origin has a soothing and gentle lubricating effect. In addition, the ointment contains nature-identical substances, which are also contained in oats and chamomile: traditionally, a skin calming effect is attributed to these substances. Natural ginger extract can counteract skin irritations.

How is Vagisan Protective Ointment applied?

A thin layer of the ointment is applied to and spread on the regularly affected areas in the external genital area. A pea-sized amount in the front and in the rear genital area is fully sufficient, for example.

The ointment can be applied 1–2 times a day, more frequently if required. Application is recommended especially

- AFTER washing
- AFTER using toilet paper
- around the anus BEFORE and AFTER a bowel movement
- BEFORE sporting activities

Vagisan Protective Ointment can also be used in the external genital area during menstruation.

Important information

Vagisan Protective Ointment should not be used immediately prior to sexual intercourse when using latex condoms, since the tear strength of latex may be impaired by the ointment.

If symptoms - such as itching, burning, pain or soreness - persist and do not improve when using Vagisan Protective Ointment, you should consult your gynaecologist.

A minimal oil leakage at the neck of the tube does not represent a quality defect; it is a property of the product caused by the addition of the nourishing oils.
